

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 1, 2008

MALCOLM PARRY

VANCOUVER SUN

COLUMNIST

■
TOMORROW WALL STREET: According to the www.zajacranch.com website, Don Rutledge's "family and friends considered him more likely to participate in an all-night party marathon than the New York City Marathon." Still, the longtime Howe Streeter will pad Manhattan blacktop Sunday in a bid to raise $1 million for Mel Zajac's Stave Lake camp for seriously ill kids. Rutledge was at Hy's Encore Wednesday, when a reverse draw for the Bob Hope Classic golf tournament contributed a reported $26,000 to the ranch. He said pal John Reynolds will sponsor his Sunday run for $1,000 mile. That's what it cost to keep son David Rutledge on auto racetracks a decade ago, when he drove in the Formula Atlantic series.

■

New York Marathoner Don Rutledge, with son David, plans to raise $1 million for Mel Zajac's ranch for kids.

■
DOWN PARRYSCOPE: If some folk are larger than life, are others smaller than death?

malcolmparry@shaw.ca